Crescenta Bolsters Its Growth with the Recruitment of Marta Solé as COO

- She joins as Chief Operating Officer (COO) after holding this position for more than six years at DWS Group (Deutsche Bank's asset manager).
- Solé has held various positions at Bankinter and A&G Luxemburgo AM.
- With her incorporation, the firm prepares to initiate new projects.

Madrid, February 16, 2026. Crescenta, a pioneer digital management company in Spain for investment in private equity funds, has incorporated Marta Solé as Chief Operating Officer (COO) to supervise the business support areas.

With this appointment, Crescenta advances in its process of consolidation and maturation, and lays the foundations for the opening of new projects and the arrival in new markets.

Marta Solé joins Crescenta from DWS Group (the asset manager of Deutsche Bank), where she worked for more than eight years, first as head of Product Management for Iberia and subsequently as COO in this region. Previously, she worked as a senior asset manager at Bankinter in Luxembourg, and as head of Asset Management at A&G Luxemburgo AM, where she developed her career for more than 7 years (two in Madrid and five in Luxembourg).

In the words of Marta Solé: "I join Crescenta excited to be part of such an innovative company that has revolutionized the market in just two years and that since then has not stopped growing. The firm is very clear about where it wants to go and I am looking forward to working with the team on the new projects that are to come."

Ramiro Iglesias, CEO of Crescenta: "The signing of Marta Solé shows the maturation that the Crescenta business is experiencing. With the vocation of leading our segment, we are strengthening the team and Marta's arrival allows us to start a new stage of expansion."

Marta Solé, who holds an MBA from IESE Business School, has a degree in Business Administration and Management from the Universitat Internacional de Catalunya, with a Specialization program in Private Banking and Financial Advice from IEB.
