Crescenta appoints Elisa de Mollinedo as Head of Legal

- She joins Crescenta after more than four years at Santander Alternative Investments, where she served as Senior Legal Associate.
- She has over eleven years of experience advising on alternative investments, as well as in fund structuring and management.
- This appointment strengthens Crescenta's legal team at a key moment of growth and consolidation for the firm.

Madrid, January 27, 2026. Crescenta, Spain's pioneering digital asset manager for investing in private equity funds, has appointed Elisa de Mollinedo as Head of Legal, strengthening its internal structure. This appointment aligns with the rapid evolution, growth, and consolidation the company is currently experiencing.

Elisa de Mollinedo joins Crescenta after more than four years at Santander Alternative Investments, where she served as Senior Legal Associate within the alternative investments division, playing an active role in building and developing the division from its early stages. During this time, she was responsible for providing cross-functional legal advice across multiple investment strategies, including venture capital, private debt, infrastructure, renewable energy, real estate, trade finance, and funds of funds, as well as structuring and managing vehicles in both Spain and Luxembourg. She previously spent more than six years at the law firm Linklaters.

In Elisa de Mollinedo's words: "Crescenta is building a strong and differentiated model for accessing alternative investments, and it is a privilege to join the firm and contribute from the legal area to its growth and consolidation."

"Our commitment has always been, and will continue to be, to offer the best products and services, and that means bringing in top talent across all our teams. We are delighted to welcome Elisa to Crescenta and to benefit from her expertise in regulation, international fund structuring, corporate law, and alternative investments," says Ramiro Iglesias, CEO of Crescenta.

Elisa de Mollinedo holds a Law degree from Universidad Pontificia Comillas (ICADE), a Master's degree in Business Law from Centro de Estudios Garrigues, and is a qualified Solicitor in England and Wales.
